Chaplain's Corner

Last time we talked about God's love: encompassing, imperishable, undefiled, without expectation. And it is. He loves and accepts us as we are. He does love us as we are, but He doesn't want us to remain there. He wants us to change, because we need to. Mark 8:34 tells us why, "If you want to follow He, you must deny yourselves." We want to do what we want to do. That is natural. God tells us to deny the natural and accept the Supernatural. Only if we deny ourselves can we follow Christ.

That is not the end of the story. James 4:7 tells us how, "Submit therefore to God; resist the Devil and he will flee from you." The power to resist comes from the opportunity to submit. We have no power apart from God. We know this because we have tried time and time again to do things on our own power to change our behavior. This is when we find we have no power. We simply cannot resist the Evil One on our own. And we cannot resist him until we change our behavior. And we cannot change our behavior until we change our hearts. And we cannot change our hearts until we surrender our will and submit to God. We need God's power to resist the devil. When we deny ourselves, surrender our will, and submit to God, then we supernaturally and instantly have that power, God's power, to resist the devil. And that is when we finally have the power to change ourselves into the people of God He intended all along.
